THE PREFACE.

Hefe few Collections (taken in vacant hours from more ferious Studies) comming thus to Publique view without my knowledge, I could not, without imputation to my modeftie, but make some just Apologic for my selfe.

For mine owne part, I seriously and sruly professe, that I never entended, nor had the least thought, much lesse any desire they should have beene made thus Publique

(neither my Yeares, ability, nor mind affiring to the Presse) being almost Printed before I had notice of it, and by that anthority, which can admit no contradiction or opposition, nor so much a any expostulation of mine.

It might have beene wished that a Worke of this nature had beene (e're this) composed and published by some Schoole-master of judgment (whose Profession as st is most usefull, so over; in all Ages and places worthily cherished) as a worke most proper to some of that faculty: But since it is thought by men of better judgement and experience then mine owne, to be notessary and beneficiall to Schollers, I commend it to their favourable censure, and intreat them in their charitable judgements to amend in it what is amisse, to expunge from it what is superfluous, and to adde to it what is descent and wanting in it.

It cannot be denyed, but in this small Volume are many words obsolete, yea (as our curious Times are) almost within the compasse of Barbarisme, and to Children not obvious: Yet I conceived, that it was not amisse to insert them, because I find them continued by the approbation of better judgements then mine owne; and the rather, because hereafter, those Schollers, to whom at their first entrance they may seeme hard and strange, may in their reading meet with them and reape benefit, by being now made acquainted with them.

The Methode observed, is briefly thus. I have divided this Worke (if I may so call it) into source Alphabeticall Classes, or Orders.

I The first, consists of such Words, as are alske in the writing, and pronunciation, differing onely in Declension, as Acus Chaffe, Acus a Noedle, Acus a Horne-sish.

2 The second, of words sounding alske, though differing in a Letter, at Cella, and Sella: Iaceo, and Iacio.

3 The third, of words (for the most part) varying in a Letter and not altogether dissonant; as Illex and Ilex, Lembus and Limbus, Rabula and Radula.

4 The last, (not altogether impertinent or unnecessary) of words dissenting in a Syllable, and not so neere in Sound as the other three; as Occo and Occulo, Peractus and Peracutus, Ter and Teter.

The Verbes in every Classis (except where they are fitted to a Noune, &c.) are placed by themselves, for the more easie and expedite finding of them.

I doubt not, but some Tantographies will some be discovered: and that I may be excused for them, because they were purposely set downe, for the bringing in of some words more proper to one place, then another.

And thus much for the Methode.

The faults and defects escaped by the Printer or my selfe, I hope will rather be amended then published. In which charitable opinion, I leave all to a kind perusall, and favourable acceptance.
